1. Although the Confederation National des Patronats Francais (CNPF) has entirely stopped its large contributions to the RPF at the national level, it continues to make generous contributions to the RPF organization in southeastern France directed by Camille Rayon. This region includes the departments of Alpes-Maritimes, Douches-du-Rhone, Var and Vaucluse.
2. Rayon considers that this discrepancy in policy on the part of the CNPF is due to the personal sympathies of Georges Villier, national director of the CNPF, and G. Keller, Marseille representative of the CNPF. While Keller is an enthusiastic supporter of the RPF, Villier, whom Rayon describes as a reactionary capitalist, is reported to have fallen out with de Gaulle over the latter's suggestion that workers receive a share of industrial profits.
